

PHILBIN GOES AT 'EM AGAIN.

Renews Vigorous Operations Against Gannon, Herlihy and Glennon.

SEEKS TO REINDICT THEM

Begins Three Separate Actions to Force Accused Men at Once to Bar of Justice.

District-Attorney Philbin renewed operations against Capt. Gannon, Capt. Herlihy and Wardman Glennon today. He is going to make a determined effort to have Gannon indicted, Herlihy indicted and Glennon forced to trial without delay.

Assistant District-Attorney Garvan, acting under the instructions of Mr. Philbin, has issued subpoenas for witnesses in the Gannon case to appear before the November Grand Jury on Thursday, when that body will be asked to indict the former captain of the East Twenty-second street station, who is now hidden away in the Central Park Arsenal, where he can do no more harm to himself.

Gannon is charged with neglect of duty in failing to suppress the Webster Hotel in East Fifteenth street, kept by Lizzie Mack. His case was submitted to the October Grand Jury, but no indictment was returned.

The case against Herlihy was to have come up in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court today, but it was not reached on the calendar and had to go over.

The appeal was taken on a demurrer of the District-Attorney to Recorder Goff's insistence that one disordered house be mentioned in the indictment instead of 120 houses.

Wardman Glennon's case is now in the Supreme Court. Justice Truax is reserving his decision on the Wardman's motion for a change of venue from Recorder Goff's court.

He will be asked by the District-Attorney today to render a decision immediately, so that the case may proceed.

The decision in this case will dispose of the motions of Sergt. Shields and Wardman Dwyer, who like Glennon, of the Tenderloin Station, and with him are charged with failure to suppress a thirty-third street disorderly house. They applied for a change of venue on the same grounds at the same time.

Wrote "tee" on Their Ballots. Among the invalidated ballots cast by anti-Van Wyck Democrats were many which had "tee" written across Van Wyck's name. Quite a number of voters wrote out their full names and addresses, evidently wishing to go boldly on record as being against the "conspicuously unfit" candidate for the Supreme Court bench.

O. H. P. BELMONT CALLS ON CROKER.

SAID TO HAVE VOLUNTEERED TO HELP FIGHT SHEEHAN.

Neither the Representative Nor the Tammany Leader Will Discuss Their Meeting.

Representative Oliver H. P. Belmont was a caller at the Democratic Club this morning. He was closeted with Mr. Croker for an hour, while Andrew Friedman, John Carroll and "Lick" Fromme conferred in the reception room.

Neither Mr. Belmont nor Mr. Croker would talk about Mr. Belmont's visit, but it is understood that he volunteered his services to the Tammany Hall in approaching night with the Sheehan organization.

Mr. Croker denied that he had been in conference with Senator Murphy with a view to erecting a State machine.

"I'm getting tired of being quoted on subjects that I have not discussed," he said. "I suppose there will be some done to combat Sheehan, but I had no talk with Senator Murphy about it."

OAKLEY'S DEFEAT COST HIM $4,170.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE FOR SHERIFF SPENT THAT SUM.

Thomas L. Hamilton Laid Out $4,170 to Be Elected as County Clerk.

Vice-Chairman John T. Oakley, of the Municipal Council, who was defeated for Sheriff by William J. O'Brien, spent $4,170 during the campaign. Of this, $2,600 went to the Tammany Hall Committee, according to the certificate filed to-day.

Thomas L. Hamilton, who was elected County Clerk last Tuesday, filed a certificate showing that he spent $539 in the campaign "for printing lithographs, postage and car-fare."

The Social Democracy didn't allow their campaign of defeat to become an expensive luxury, as evidenced by the certificates of expenses filed to-day. Their most extravagant candidate was Gustave Duesler, who was running for the fourteen-year job of a Supreme Court Justice at $15,000 a year. He contributed $2 to the Campaign Committee and spent $3 besides.

ALDERMEN GET EXCITED.

Party Lines Are Drawn in Long and Noisy Wrangles.

WAR ON SPECULATORS.

Resolution to Protect the Patrons of Theatres a Subject of Debate.

Excitement ran high in the Aldermanic Chamber at the City Hall this afternoon at the first regular meeting since election. Debates on all questions were made on strict party lines, and became so warm that Vice-President John T. McCall threatened Alderman MacInnes with repression at the hands of the Sergeant-at-Arms.

The first decided tilt came over an appropriation of about $100,000 asked for by Street-Cleaning Commissioner Nagle. He wants to buy one hundred horses at $15, bicycles at $35, harness at $35, whips at $4, and other items are a dump for $5,000 and crematories for $15,000 and $25,000.

Alderman MacInnes tried to put the matter over.

The Vice-President, who is the Tammany leader, excitedly accused Mr. MacInnes of "playing to the gallery." "You are making a grandstand play," he said, "two you Republicans will send the Street-Cleaning Commissioner out of office with a bad record."

Mr. MacInnes in turn declared he was in earnest and that his opposition was solely to not let Mr. Nagle spend $100,000 as he wished with so little supervision.

The Vice-President had hard work to keep the Aldermen in order.

Alderman Goodman openly announced that for the rest of the year he would oppose any considerable appropriations except for immediate necessities.

"We have had a change," he said, "and will have a greater. I believe that the incoming administration should have the disbursement of all sums and get what credit or censure is its due."

He was applauded vociferously when action on the matter was put over.

Mr. McCall introduced a new resolution aimed at the street peddlers and pushcart men. It provides that any house or leaseholder may have any peddler arrested if he displays wares in front of the complainant's premises after being asked to move on. The penalty is $25 fine.

Next Alderman Wolf brought up the theatre ticket speculating question. He offered a resolution that the proper licenses be raised from $50 to $200 and issued only to those who could prove their reputable citizenship. Much argument developed.

BISSERT MAY YET TELL ALL HE KNOWS

PERSISTENT RUMOR WARDMAN WILL CONFESS.

Fund of $50,000 Has Been Raised to Get Him Out of Trouble.

Persistent rumors are again being circulated to the effect that Wardman Bissert has offered to confess and tell what he knows regarding the protection of vice in return for immunity from punishment. The rumors are extremely disquieting to Police Headquarters.

A fund of $50,000 is said to have been raised for Bissert's defense. One-half of this sum is said to have been invested in the name of a relative of the convicted wardman.

He can secure this sum even if he proves false to his implied obligation of keeping silent and accepting his punishment without "qualifying."

MR. SHEPARD SPENT $3,309 IN CAMPAIGN

DEFEATED CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR FILES BILL.

He Certifies to Expenses, Including Two Contributions of $1,000 in Manhattan and Brooklyn.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Edward M. Shepard, Democratic candidate for Mayor of Greater New York, to-day certified to the Secretary of State that his expenses in the late municipal contest were $3,309.00.

The expenses included the following: Campaign funds of the Democratic party in Manhattan $1,000 and in Brooklyn $1,000; Citizens' Union Committee of One Hundred, $250; Brooklyn Democratic Club, $150; stenographic and other work at his headquarters in Brooklyn, $543.32; Brooklyn District Telephone Company, for messengers, $18.62; New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, $37.50; typewriter supplies, $25; telegrams, $23.81; typewriting, $23.28; stenography, $31; carriage hire, $8; stationery supplies, $7.16; petty disbursements, $32.52.

No place like home! No place to get one like the Sunday World's House and Home Wants.

HAS ANY ONE SEEN DEVERY? $2 REWARD FOR FIRST CLUE.

THE MISSING DEVERY.

$2.00 REWARD.

A reward of $2.00 will be paid to any person, furnishing The Evening World with reliable information that will lead to the discovery of the whereabouts of William S. Devery, late "the best Chief of Police New York ever had."

Oh! where, oh! where has "Bill" Devery gone?

Oh! where, oh! where can he be?

With his ample girth and his cry, "Youse bums!"

Oh! where, oh! where can he be?

—From Pump Ballads, page 4-11-44.

Devery, He is still Missing. His folks say he is not at home. He is not at Police Headquarters. He has not been seen in his office. Since the sad, sad election Returns began drifting in there on Election Night. He has not been seen in Jersey City, where His double once Appeared and Gave money Away. When asked if they have seen him recently The bartenders Of Harlem look gloomy and say: "Nil." This means that They have not. When asked questions Touchin' on an' appertainin' to Devery, Col. Murphy suggests that The Big Chief Has lumbago in his side. Col. Murphy indorses the lumbago. But the folks at home Know nothing of the Alleged lumbago. The lumbago formerly attacked Devery in the side. This was after Devery's Double Gave money Away. Perhaps the missing Deputy Police Commissioner has Something else On the side now. Who knows?

LOW AND ODELL TO CONFER AS TO CITY GOVERNMENT.

Mayor-elect Low is not prepared to say that he stands now where he did in 1896 on the excise question. In that year he appeared before the Legislature and argued that the people of the city should be allowed to vote on the Sunday opening question. When asked this morning if he still believed in local option on Sunday opening, he said:

"If you will carefully follow my letter of acceptance, you will not go far out of the way in concluding what my stand is. As this letter is my most recent utterance on the subject I think it should be allowed to represent my views."

The Mayor-elect then announced that he would leave for Albany to-morrow morning for a conference with Gov. Odell. He will try to return to New York to-morrow night, but may remain another day in Albany.

"It was my practice," he explained, "when Mayor of Brooklyn, to keep in close touch with the Governor. I be-mentioned as the probable Commissioner of Police.

"Have you decided upon any of your appointments?" asked The Evening World reporter.

"I have not made much progress in the way of considering appointments," he said.

"Of course you will be non-partisan in your selections?" suggested the reporter.

"That was the pledge I took with the nomination."

"If a Tammany man, fully equipped and in no way objectionable, should appear as a candidate for an office, would you appoint him?"

"Those things," said Mr. Low smilingly, "will have to be considered when they come up."

"I don't suppose a Tammany man would stand much of a show," the reporter remarked.

Mr. Low laughed, and there was that in his laugh that indicated that followers of the Wigwag will not be warmly greeted.

From now until New Year's he will be at his new headquarters in Madison Square, when he is in the city, from 2 o'clock to 2 o'clock every afternoon.

The method of the men was to accost young girls in the parks on the east side and offer them employment, directing them to an alleged employment agency in Second street. There the girls were told that they could get good places in Philadelphia.

Panyko and Hitter took them over in squads and forced them into disorderly houses.

Three girls were taken over last week. One of them found her way back and told her story to her parents. It reached Assistant District-Attorney Sanford, who asked Capt. Tuzig for detectives.

Ryders and Milburn were detailed to the case and through them the headquarters of the gang was located and Panyko was found.

Other arrests will follow.

One-legged Man Found Dead.

Charles Baldwin, of No. 23 West Seventeenth street, was found dead this morning on the pavement in front of No. 52 West Thirtieth street. He had gray hair and mustache and was poorly dressed in dark clothes. His right leg was of wood. His death was probably due to heart disease.

DIED DREAMING OF HIS DREAM

Connolly Expired of Convulsions Exactly as He Had Seen Himself in Vision.

That "faith cure" can work two ways is proved by the strange death of John Connolly, of Somerville, N. J. A premonition of death came to him in a dream, and so firm was faith in the warning that he died in convulsions inside of twelve hours.

Connolly was one of the characters of the little town of Somerville, an important junction of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. He was a rugged fellow of thirty-five, and he could throw more baggage than any man on the division.

For all his great strength he had fancied ailments, and his chums laughed at him when he began to develop an interest in Christian Science and talk of the cures he had wrought on himself.

Connolly was a Roman Catholic, but he grew to have a firm belief in the influence of mind over matter as a panacea for physical ills.

Some time ago his vagaries cost him his job, and for weeks he had been drinking rather more than he ought.

Dropped in to say Good-By.

Yesterday he turned up at the railroad station wearing a doleful face.

"Just dropped in to say good-by, fellows," was his greeting to the group of baggage and freight handlers.

"Going away, John?" chorused his friends.

"Yes, and for good," said Connolly.

"I'm going to die to-day. Seriously, gentlemen, I had a warning last night in a dream. I saw myself in the full flush of health, as I am now, struck down in the street with convulsions and I stared death in the face. I know what it means. I have had my warning and my hour has come."

Connolly stopped at the home of his friend Edward Fallon, in Cliff street, and there, while telling again the story of his dream, he fell to the floor in the convulsions he had dreamed of.

Dr. Thomas H. Flynn and Father Borsart, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, were quickly summoned. The man revived a little, and Fallon had him placed in a carriage to take him to his home. He was unconscious.

While passing the estate of J. Rand Garrison, on the way to East Somerville, he suffered a second convulsion and died.

Admiral Farragut Post No. 7, G. A. R., has appointed a committee of five members to visit Police Headquarters and the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street Station, to urge a vigorous search for the murderous assassins of Frank McDonald, of No. 305 West One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street.

Mr. McDonald died last night from injuries received at 1 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 5. Mr. McDonald was a veteran and in his seventy-first year.

His son, Francis T. McDonald, said to-day: "I have learned there was a free fight on election morning in Thompson's saloon, on the corner of One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street, and Eighty avenue. The brawlers were put out on the sidewalk and dispersed by the police. Later father on his way home dropped into the saloon, and as he walked out some of the brawlers, mistaking him for one of their enemies, struck him on the head. My brother-in-law, Edward Harrison, found him sitting on our stoop at 3 o'clock in the morning. Brain fever set in. He never recovered consciousness."

The matter was not reported to the police until Saturday night. So far the detectives have learned nothing of Mr. McDonald's assailants.

SHIPPING NEWS.

ALMANAC FOR TO-DAY.

Sun rises. 6:42; sets. 4:46; Moon rises. 5:46.

THE TIDES.

High Water. Low Water.

Sandy Hook. 12:52 8:31 1:15 2:18

Governor's Island. 8:22 8:34 2:48 2:50

Hell Gate Ferry. 10:15 10:27 3:16 3:22

PORT OF NEW YORK.

ARRIVED.

Berulia. Havana

Bavlin. Liverpool

Montpelier. Rio Janeiro

Ethiopia. Glasgow

Marquessa. Rotterdam

Amsterdam. Santos

Syracuse. Almeria

Chicago. Almeria

Origin. Mombasa Bay

Algeria. Savanna

INCOMING STEAMSHIPS.

DUE TO-DAY.

Leithing. Greenock. Orizaba. Colon.

Patric. Lisbon. Lampasa. Galveston.

Guaria. Naples. El Norte. New Orleans.

POLICEMAN'S SECRET OUT.

Robbed While He Slept on July 7, He Never Said a Word.

Policeman Hahn's secret is out.

It was betrayed through the arrest of "Bill" Clark, negro burglar, Friday night.

Ella Adams, servant, of Mrs. Evans, No. 173 West Forty-seventh street, saw Clark running out of the house and followed him in a cab.

The burglar went into No. 202 West Forty-ninth street. Ella got a policeman and had him arrested.

Detective Fitzgerald on Saturday went to the house to get evidence. He got:

Evidence of an opium joint.

Four needles, arrested as suspicious persons.

Pawn tickets for $1,500 worth of goods.

One police revolver, loaded, No. 297.

The revolver, which was loaned at Police Headquarters yesterday, was Policeman Hahn's. Hahn is attached to the Special Sessions squad.

Hahn was robbed July 7 while asleep in his room at No. 156 West Fifteenth street. The thieves got $500 in cash, a diamond pin, diamond cuff buttons, a diamond ring, a gold cigar cutter and Hahn's revolver.

But Hahn didn't tell the police.

"If I'd been awake they'd never 'a got it," Hahn explained, apologetically in the West Side Court to-day.

"Policemen shouldn't sleep," laughed Magistrate Brann. "It's a wonder to me they don't steal policemen."

DIED FROM THUG'S BLOW

Frank McDonald, Civil War Veteran, Victim of Murderous Brawlers.

Admiral Farragut Post No. 7, G. A. R., has appointed a committee of five members to visit Police Headquarters and the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street Station, to urge a vigorous search for the murderous assassins of Frank McDonald, of No. 305 West One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street.

Mr. McDonald died last night from injuries received at 1 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 5. Mr. McDonald was a veteran and in his seventy-first year.

His son, Francis T. McDonald, said to-day: "I have learned there was a free fight on election morning in Thompson's saloon, on the corner of One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street, and Eighty avenue. The brawlers were put out on the sidewalk and dispersed by the police. Later father on his way home dropped into the saloon, and as he walked out some of the brawlers, mistaking him for one of their enemies, struck him on the head. My brother-in-law, Edward Harrison, found him sitting on our stoop at 3 o'clock in the morning. Brain fever set in. He never recovered consciousness."

The matter was not reported to the police until Saturday night. So far the detectives have learned nothing of Mr. McDonald's assailants.

SHIPPING NEWS.

ALMANAC FOR TO-DAY.

Sun rises. 6:42; sets. 4:46; Moon rises. 5:46.

THE TIDES.

High Water. Low Water.

Sandy Hook. 12:52 8:31 1:15 2:18

Governor's Island. 8:22 8:34 2:48 2:50

Hell Gate Ferry. 10:15 10:27 3:16 3:22

PORT OF NEW YORK.

ARRIVED.

Berulia. Havana

Bavlin. Liverpool

Montpelier. Rio Janeiro

Ethiopia. Glasgow

Marquessa. Rotterdam

Amsterdam. Santos

Syracuse. Almeria

Chicago. Almeria

Origin. Mombasa Bay

Algeria. Savanna

PRISON FOR POLICEMAN.

O'Connor, Who Wounded Aged Man, Gets Three Years and a Half.

The widespread influence exercised in behalf of William O'Connor, a policeman, who was tried on an assault charge before Judge Cowing, in the Court of General Sessions this morning, was of no avail. He was sentenced to serve three years and six months in Sing Sing.

O'Connor was intoxicated in Seventh avenue, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, on Feb. 16 last. In his exuberance he drew his revolver and began shooting. Two of the bullets struck Lorenzo Comins, 31 years old, of No. 162 West Fifteenth street. The old man recovered, despite his advanced age and the serious wounds.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.

The jury in the case brought in a verdict of assault in the first degree this morning. Judge Cowing said he had received scores of letters asking clemency for the policeman, but that the evidence showed that no clemency should be exercised. He did not believe, however, that the verdict should have been assault in the first degree and imposed a second degree sentence.